Rosie Woodman

Behavioural Intelligence, Security and Ethics Specialist
Author of the forthcoming The HUMINT Method

Rosie helps leaders and organisations make better decisions when the stakes are human. Her work brings together behavioural intelligence, ethical leadership, insider threat, security strategy and the governance of emerging technology.

More than fifteen years across military intelligence, the justice system and private industry inform a speaking style that is rigorous, practical and grounded in the realities of consequential work.

Signature keynote themes

The HUMINT Method	What human intelligence tradecraft teaches us about communication, conflict and trust at work.
Ethical Leadership Under Pressure	How leaders preserve judgement, legitimate dissent and accountability when obligations compete.
The Human Side of Insider Risk	Moving beyond indicators to understand behaviour, organisational conditions and proportionate intervention.
AI, Human Capability and Decision Integrity	Protecting professional judgement and accountability as AI reshapes analysis and influence.
For Women's Leadership Events	Reading power, building trust and exercising influence without losing authenticity, judgement or voice.

FORMATS AND FIT

Designed for serious audiences.

KEYNOTES	Conference and organisational keynotes, executive briefings and leadership events. Content is adapted to audience, sector and intended outcome.
WORKSHOPS	Interactive 90-minute, half-day and full-day sessions that translate ideas into shared practice, useful language and immediate application.
FACILITATION	Executive strategy, risk and decision sessions where competing priorities, incomplete information or sensitive dynamics make structure essential.
